GRAPHIC DESCRIPTION OF MONDAY'S FIGHT respondence of the New York World. ON BOARD TRANSPORT, JAMES RIVER,

TUESDAY EVENING, July 1. Events have culminated. More history has been made. Physical nature demands facts. Another terrible battle has been honoring their country.

MONDAY MORNING. Yesterday, while Porter was pushing for the river, Heintzelman and Sumner's corps moved down the Williamsburg road towards White Oak Swamp. The enemy immediately got up his columns and followed. He seemed to spread himself out like a fan, for before noon he was found to be advance ing upon every road leading from Rich-mond—the Williamsburg, the Charles City, ith fanaticism of the danger of this the Central and the New Market, as wel > umn by seniority, and made the dispositions for the day so as to effectually prevent any fanking movements, and at the same time to protect all the approaches and give am-ple room for the transportation to get out of the way, which had been moved from White Oak Swamp, and were being hastened toward James river with all possible speed, and yet without confusion.

THE POSITION. Our position in this battle was as follows Keyes had taken possession of the road leading from White Oak Swamp to the river, and Smith was placed on it in his rear, so as to prevent any movement on the right flank, at the same time holding the road to Long Bridge. Next on the left was Sumner's corps, of Richardson's and Sedgwick's divisions. Connecting with Sumner on the left (as you face Richmond) was McCall were held in reserve. Though but little time was given for preparation, yet our line, though fully three miles long, was reformed so as to prevent the enemy from passing either of our flanks by any of the four roads by which he advanced.

THE ACTION. I have a mass of facts concerning the movements, disposition and details of regi-ments and brigades before me, but want of time and almost entire physical exhaustion will compel me to make the details brief. Generally speaking the action was a fit counterpart, in severity, to those already fought, and adds fearfully to the list of casualties, now already swollen beyond be-lief by the dreadful contests of Wednesday, Thursday and Friday last. I have the same magnificent action of our troops to record; the same self sacrificing devotion was exhibited; the same bravery and unflinching valor in rank and file; their charges; their repulses; their losses and their gains.

THE ATTACK ON SUMNER.

The fight opened with artillery about 2 o'clock. The firing was not very severe at first, and seemed divided about equally beright, and the action on this part of the wing though lasting from 34 until nearly 6 o clock, was finally successful in every respect, the enemy being effectually repulsed with enormous loss.

Tale after tale has already been told of the bravery shown by our men. It needs no further elaboration. Without a single exfurther elaboration. Without a single exception this part of the battle was conducted, both by troops and leaders, with all the valor that flesh and blood can summon.

HEINTZELMAN SUPPORTED.

The contest had been going on with unsurpassed vigor until six o'clock, when it became evident that the enemy were pressing this brave general back. McCall's your ranks! But a short time elapsed be fore they were broken and pushed back, with their division general and brigadier wounded. Hundreds of the men were left on the field. They had tried to do too much

HELP FROM SUMNER.

Sedgwick's division now came to the relief, and Hooker and Kearney rallied again for a final and desperate charge. Four batteries of artillery were brought forward and advantageously posted. They opened with good range and disastrous effect upon the enemy. At the same time our troops, with their Generals at their heads, made an impetuous onset against the surging masses of the enemy, and with the aid of the terrible artillery fire, soon broke the opposing columns and succeeding in capturing taking one brigade of three regiments pris-oners, among whom are Col. Pendleton, of the Louisiana Battalion, and ex-Congress-man Lamar, of the First Georgia Regiment. THE ARTILLERY.

As a general thing, the artillery in this engagement was much better served than in several of the previous fights. For two hours the roar of the guns was so great that even the heavy volume of musketry was drowned in the noise. In a reserve posi-tion, supported by Generals Morell and Sykes' divisions, was a force of artillery so planted as to rake the only approach from the interior, and had the enemy even driven our forces back that far, they must have been annihilated by the terrible and converging cross-fire of those seventy Parrots and Napoleons.

THE GUNBOATS. When our advance reached James river. early Monday morning, there was only the gunboat Aroostook in the stream. Those who did not know the proximity of Commander Rogers, with his fleet, felt as though Galena appeared, and at 4 o'clock both she and the Aroostook opened from their heavy guns, and shelled the river road in a most effective manner. The gunners could not McCall—Hancock, and Davidson, and Mead, see the road, but a signal officer, in an exback a body of the enemy, who had moved down that road with a battery of artillery on our left flank.

OUR LOSSES. Our loss is again very heavy. Probably of killed, wounded, and missing. It falls with almost equal severity upon all the divisions, except Smith, who was not so gen-erally engaged. The brigades of Generals Dana, Gorman, Burns, Newton, Berry, and Sickles suffered very largely Twenty-ninth Massachusetts, was wounded. chusetts are left in command of the regiment; while in other regiments many officers are left without commands.

DEATH OF STONEWALL JACKSON. Elsewhere I have alluded to the fact that ackson was knocked from his horse by a anister shot from Martin's Massachusetts battery, during the fight on Friday. I can now state that the Richmond Dispatch of Monday, found on a prisoner taken last night, announces his death in solemn court; also that of Gen. Barnwell Khett, of South Carolina, Rhett was undoubtedly killed in the action at Savage's Station on Sunday. The prisoners further say that Gen. Long-street was wounded in the back and in the fight last night.

THE LACK OF SUPPLIES. It must be remembered by the public that nearly the entire army has been under arms since Wednesday of last week, now seven days. On Thursday and Friday the men put three days' rations in their haversacks: but as is always the case soldiers eat up three days in one; nine-tenths of them have not had an issue of commissary stores since until to-day; and therefore most of them have been for three days without anything but hard crackers, and many of them had not even that. I myself had been able to get but half a dozen during the last thirty-six hours. Water, too, scarce, and this has wer kened the men to a vast degree. Need I say, then, that when the troops arrived at the river yesterday, and saw not a friendly transport there, their hearts almost sank at the prospect? Exhausted, weary, and famished, they could not be expected to fight. Yet their spirits—brave and noble men—neverfailed

THE ARRIVAL OF REINFORCEMENTS AND SUP

PLIES. Just as we left the Whait a laden with provisions anchored in the stream. A few miles down stream we began to pass fleet after fleet of steam and sail transports, laden with supplies and men. These will all reach Harrison's landing before morning, and will be hailed with great joy by the entire army. We must have passed 200 vessels.

A THRILLING INCIDENT.

Speaking of the spirit of the men re-ninds me of an incident, both grand and peautiful, which took place yesterday after-noon in Butterfield's Brigade. For months noon in Butterfield's Brigade. For months there has been a standing order against the playing of bands in camp, and in not one instance of the numerous late battles have our splendid bands been allowed to inspire the heart of the brave soldier by the strains of patriotic music. A great mistake, all will say. During the fight yesterday afternoon an order came for Morell's division to repair to the hill near where the battle was going on, and act as a support for the reserve artillery. The men obeyed the order to fall in promptly, though the weather was scorching hot, and they had been four days without rest or sleep.

cheer after cheer arose from regiment after regiment, and was borne away upon the bosom of the placid river. The band continued to play, and other regiments and other brigades caught the spirit, and the air resounded with tumultuous applause at the happy hit, until all the columns on that vast plain were vieing with each other to dohomage to the inspiriting strains of the band. After several times Major Welch, of the Sixteenth Michigan, in a brief speech, proposed three cheers for the hero of the command, General Dan. Butterfield, which were given in magnificent style. To add to the enthusiasm General McClellan hap-pened to ride through the field just then, and was received with an outburst that fairly astonished him.

The scene was continued, the brigade moved off with the band playing, and had there been a fight in the next field, the men would have gone into action on the double-quick to the tune of Yankee Doodle, if every one had known that death would be his fate. All honor to the famous Light Brigade!

It is not politic for me to allude to the particulars of the present position of the army. With the supplies and reenforcements now going forward, the army is safe beyond a peradventure. The new lines and

Their friends will be glad to hear it.

And Mr. W. D. Bickham, the graphic was correspondent of the Cincinnati Commercial, gives the following result of his observations of General McClellan's army on Mon day and Tuesday of last week:

I cannot detail the battle of Monday Brigades and regiments and companies and fragments of each were fought as they could be used. It matters not who were here or there. It was a terrible battle. General McCall was lost. General Sumner was twice wounded, but not seriously. His wounds were bound on the field, and he remained in the saddle and in the fiery torrent. Colonel Wyman, too, of the 18th Massachusetts, was killed. General Meade was severely wounded. How many others 1 cannot tell. It was a bloody day. Melancholy satisfaction for such dead as ours.

The enemy was beaten again, thank God-beaten badly, driven back, slaughtered fearfully. The gunboats had at least a moral agency in the fight. It did not appear that their guns could do more than tect the left flank, which was much, and the enemy was shy of that point. But an officer of Gen. McClellan's staff told me we lost twenty guns that day, "How?" The Massachusetts regiments seem to be fated. Col. Wyman, of the Sixteenth Massachusetts, was killed. Col. Hinks, of the Heintzelman's command captured twelve Nineteenth, was wounded. Major Howe, of the same regiment, was killed. Lieutenant enemy. I think the latter doubtful. Gen. Lee, ditto, was killed. Said I Others have broken and retired; the genu ine Yankees of New England have never faltered on the Chickahominy." It is true; and Massachusetts mourns more dead soldiers, comparatively, than any State's quota in the army of the Potomac.

Tuesday, the 1st of July, was not a cheer ful day. The prospect was not happy. The Prince de Joinville, always gay and active as a lad, and always where there was battle, had gone. The Count de Paris, heir to the Bourbon throne, and the Duke de Chartres, his brother, the two chivalric and he safely relied; who served with him to learn the art of war, suddenly, without previous warning, took passage on a gun-boat and fluttered softly down the river. Why did they go? Two officers of the English army, who had accompanied Gen. McClellan to study the art of war, and who had intended to remain with the army until Richmond was ours, announced their intention to depart on the first gunboat. The Paymasters were advised to deposit their treasure on a gunboat. People looked gloomy. Ah! I forgot: correspondents at Fortress Monroe, deducing facts from their fertile imaginations, told us that when the army reached Malvern Hill, the river at that point was full of transports. Monday noon there was not one there—excepting a schooner laden with hay. Tuesday evening several steamers had arrived and a few forage boats. But reason for yourselves. It was gloomy at headquarters. The troops were intrenching the hill and standing to arms. The enemy were reported massing their forces. We were preparing to repel them. At noon silence was broken by hostile cannon in the extreme front. As the afternoon wore away the bombardment increased. At five o'clock there was a battle, and the Aroostook was hurling shell in-to the woods. At about seven o'clock the firing was heavy, but it was confined to a narrow circle. Ayres was driving the enemy from his batteries. Our boat pushed from the landing. At dark we moved from Harrison's Landing, seven miles below. The army had not moved there. The trains had. Soon after we steamed into the chan-nel the bombardment grew heavier. The gunboats were thundering into the forests. When I left the prospect was cheerless. That night we met reinforcements. Before

The officers and civilians who are constantly arriving here continue to give fabulous accounts of the number of the rebel force precipitated upon McClellan in the battles, and yet unofficial information persists in saying that Beauregard's army, or most of it, is still in Mississippi. If this be so, the rebel force must have been in-creased to its present numbers at Richmond

Bro, of this city.

Charles D. Weller and Wiley Parker, of Tennessee, were murdered and robbed on the Clarksville and Dover road, seventeen miles southwest of Clarksville, and two miles north of Indian Mound, in Stewart ounty, Tennessee, about half past seven o'clock on Tuesday morning, July 1st, 1862. They were traveling in a buggy drawn by a mule, and were on their way to Louisville, Mr. Weller having been on a business tour. The night previous to the murder they stayed at the house of Noah McGregor, three quarters of a mile from the scene of the essessionation.

the assassination. Mr. Weller was killed by seven buckshot which penetrated the left breast, nearly all the shot passing through his heart. Parker was also shot with buckshot just back of the right ear. They were dragged to the edge of the road and rifled of all their valuables, the mule was left standing hitched to the buggy—no pains being taken to conceal the double murder. Two men were working in a field, within a stone's throw of the scene of murder. They stated that Messrs. W. & P. passed

"change." He wished to abolish all use of mediately on their disappearing from sight, they heard the firing of two guns, the shots some object in the thicket. The bodies were not found until four o'clock in the evening of the day on which they were killed.

The authors of the bloody deed are supposed to be two men of very bad reputation who kept a doggery on the road along which Messrs. W. & P. passed. These men borrowed shot guns on the evening before the murder, and stated they were going to hunt a runaway negro, whom they stated was in that vicinity. These men were seen the Memphis Daily Avalanche has changed was in that vicinity. These men were seen proprietors, and came out on the 4th under no more until the next evening, when the came in from the woods. Upon being asked concerning the negro, they stated they had Public opinion was settling strong against the two men in question, and one of them at this writing had already left the neighborhood.

The Commanding Officer at Clarksville sent down a number of men to make ar-rests, and it is to be hoped that the authors of the bloody deed will be apprehended.

Chas D. Weller was twenty-seven years of age, and was born in Larue county, Ky. and had been in business in Louisville for a number of years, up to the time of his met last night. Richmond Papers Acknowledge a Loss of 30,000 Men.

WOLDS AWD SARRE McClellan's Army Moves 5 Miles Nearer Richmond, and Still Advancing.

Two Days Later from Europe.

NEW YORK, July 7. The steamship Champion, from Aspinall, has just arrived.

New York, July 7. A letter to the Post confirms the reported skirmish on Thursday, and the capture of six guns and some prisoners.

Gen. McClellan had removed his head-quarters, and the army had advanced some five miles towards Richmond.

The correspondent of the Philadelphia Enquirer states that the Richmond papers of the 4th acknowledge the loss of 30,000 men, though they claim the victory.

The correspondent of the Philadelphia Press of the same date reports that General McClellan is pusing rapidly forward, driving the enemy at all points. The gunboats accompanied his advance, shelling the woods and scattering the enemy. His main force is following in support.

COTTON HAULING AND COTTON BURNING ON THE MEMPHIS AND OHIO RAILROAD .within the past few days, we learn, destroyed several lots of cotton collected on plantations and designed for sale in this Yesterday three negro boys with drays loaded with cotton, while between Union depet and Hickory Withe, on their way to the city, were overtaken by a squad of Confederate cavalry. The negroes, mules, drays, and cotton were "confiscated" -the drays burned and the negroes and mules taken along. The negroes and teams were owned in this city—one of the captured boys, a likely negro, and his team, being the property of Captain Dick Tucker, of the night police; another belongs to R. B. Joiner, Esq., and the other is a negro well known in the city, named Foster, for-merly the property of S. B. Williamson, Esq. No doubt more cetton and drays have met with the same fate in that portion of the country, but the above is the only affair of the kind that has reached us .- Memphis Argus, 2d.

FRIENDLY SENTIMENTS IN MISSISSIPPI. We are assured by our correspondent, says the New York Tribune, who speaks from personal observation, that the people of personal observation, that the people of Dress Trimmings, Corsets, Hoslery, Embroideries, Laces, much more friendly sentiments than greeted our army anywhere in Tennessee. From the towns but few people had fled. In the country, everybody seemed to be at home, following the usual pursuits. Positive sympathy was manifested by the rustics and towns-people. Fear was hardly perceptible anywhere. The poorer classes were evidently, almost without exception, still attached to the Union, and the wealthy despaired of the success of the rebellion and were ready to give up. Of cotton burning, but little had been done, not over a hundred bales having been destroyed be tween Corinth and Booneville.

SKIRMISH NEAR MORNING SUN, TENN .- Information has reached military headquarters in this city of a skirmish which occurred yesterday near Morning Sun, on the Macon road, between a body of Federal infantry-said to be 240-commanded by Col. Munger, of the 57th Ohio, which had been guarding a wagon train to Gen. Sherman's division, and a body of Confederate cavalry. The Federal account is in effect est that the Confederates, supposed to be 500 in number, made the attack, and were re-pulsed with a loss of 29 killed, wounded and prisoners, while the Federal loss was four wounded; also, that six wagons, whose mules had stampeded, were captured by the Confederates. Two prisoners were brought to the city last night. One of them is a Mr. Bowen, and the other a Dr. Chambers, formerly of this city. Seven men, charged with burning cotton were also brought in. It is supposed that about 70 of the Confederates are of "Porter's partizans," and the remainder citizens of the neighborhood.

Memphis Argus, 2d.

PUNISHMENT FOR GUERRILLAS .- The gen eral orders respecting guerrillas are ver pointed. We quote some of them Secretary Stanton says - "Let then

Gen. Dix advises to "shoot them on the Gen. Schofield says-"Execute them im-

General Blunt says-"Give them no quarters. General Loan says-"Shoot them when found. Gen. Halleck's orders are-"Let them be tried immediately by a drumhead coursand punished with death."

The Memphis Avalanche, of July 1st

We learn from a gentleman who cam into town last night from Wythe's Station, about twenty-eight miles from here, on the Memphis and Ohio Railroad, that a force of Confederate cavalry are scouring the country in that vicinity, burning cotton and committing other depredations.

At the station they had burned some forty or fifty bales, as also the railroad water tank. Our informant estimated their force at not less than two thousand, including Jackson's command and Porter's Partithe sponge penetrating them and appropriating the nutritive parts.

The sponge is an animal remarkably fond of newspapers, we have discovered in an experience of fifteen years.

DROWNED .- Two soldiers, one belonging to company G, 85th Ohio, and the other to Col. Carrington's regiment, were drowned in the river, near Columbus, Ohio, on Wednesday afternoon. The one of the 18th U.S. A was Charles Haynes, of Zanesville.

The steamer City of Alton recently made the trip from St. Louis to Memphis, including stoppages, in less than thirty hours. The Captain says he can do it in twenty-four hours.

A gentleman named George Staley was recently robbed in Memphis, Tenn., of was recently robbed in Memphis, Tenn., of a purse containing $500. Neither the thief nor money had been heard from at the latest accounts.

Sewing Machine!

WARRANTED THE BEST IN THE MARKET. Elias Howe, Jr., and S. H. Roper's Com bined Patents. Straight-Line Movements, Original Transverse Shu THESE SEWING MACHINES COMBINE THE MESE SEWING MACHINES COMBINE THE Most recent improvements, are nearly noiseless when in operation, run with the greatest ease and rapidity, and are better adapted for general purposes and family use than any other. They are not liable to get out of order, are exceedingly simple, and are made expressly for real practical utility; they do every variety of sewing, from the finest woven tissue to the heaviest woolen goods, both tailoring and fine leather work. Any person may learn to operate them in a very short time. is too much complication, requiring so much consta adjustment, and such an amount of mechanical and and ingenuity to use them to advantage, as to ren them of little comparative value. But the Sewing Machines manufactured by Gree man & True are not liable to these objections, as a person, on even a moment's examination, will read discover. They will do more and better work than a
